Ants are day laborers; and they are very busy, too, in their calling. They always seem in earnest at their work. Catch them asleep in the day time, if you can! Ants freely work, without disguise; Their ways consider, and be wise. 13. Hen. Go on, uncle; I am not half so tired as 1 was. 14. Un. The swallow is a fly-catcher; and the number he catches in a day would quite surprise you. Often have you seen him skimming along the surface of the brook and the pond. 15. Hen. Yes, that I have; and swallows are as busy as ants, I think. 16. Un. The beaver is a wood-cutter, a builder, and a mason; and he is a good workman at all these trades. He cuts down the small trees with his teeth; and, after he has built his house, he plasters it. 17. Hen. Well done, beaver! He seems to outdo all the rest. 18. Un. The wasp is a paper-maker; and he makes his paper out of materials that no other paper-maker would use. If you ever should look closely at a wasps nest, you will find it all made of paper. 19. Hen. How many curious things there are in the world that I never thought of! 20. Un. Singing birds are musicians; and no music is sweeter than theirs. We can hardly tell which excels in his song. On the feathery-wing they rove, And wake with harmony the...
