E2 2009n OCLC Number: (OCoLC)613333786 Subject: Predatory lending -- United States. Excerpt: . . . Chapter 1 Introduction programs combined. Although the household is the base unit to which food stamp benefits are issued, most of the people who benefit from the program are children or elderly persons. In addition, more than 20 percent of recipient households have some earnings from work, making the program a critical source of nutritional support for the nations working poor. The federal government funds all food stamp benefits and shares with the Federal Role states in the administrative costs of distributing benefits to eligible recipients. The federal government pays all costs for printing the stamps, distributing the stamps to the states, and destroying the stamps after they are used. The government also pays all costs associated with approving and monitoring food stores authorized to redeem food stamps. In addition, the government pays roughly 50 percent of the costs incurred by the states in administering the program. These costs include certifying recipients for eligibility, distributing benefits to recipients, and conducting quality control activities. FCS prepares Food Stamp Program regulations and provides technical assistance to the states. In addition, as part of its oversight responsibilities, FCS has established a Quality Control ( QC ) System to monitor states determinations of individuals eligibility for benefits and the level of those System, states are required to review a sample of QC benefits. Under the their food stamp cases to test the accuracy of eligibility and benefit level determinations made by their caseworkers. The states error rate findings, a combination of overpayments and underpayments, are provided to S. FC FCS then...
